Dinner tonight was kind of a fusion affair, as we were cleaning out the fridge.

We had chili verde, garlic bok choy with fish sauce, rosewater lassi, orange ginger carrot juice, ice cream, and bagels. Not all at once, and not necessarily in that order.

I think this relationship has been taken to a new level. When we're at my place, Tasha no longer bothers getting her own bowl of anything. She just grabs a fork and sharks off mine.

I growl and mantle over the bowl and she pulls my ears to move my head out of the way and says things like, "Hey! I like it! I get to eat more different things this way!" and "Less dishes to wash!"

...I think we've gotten cute. 0.0

Too cute!

Tasty dinner, too!

Awww, there's a lot more than a shot from the sounds of things.

Have you started finishing each other's sentences yet?

cvillette

March 5 2008, 01:42:19 UTC COLLAPSE

Hah! I meant in the sense of an inoculation against cute.

Oh, god, no. No sentence finishing.

cjtremlett

March 5 2008, 02:17:56 UTC COLLAPSE

There is no inoculation against cute. You can try, but then something even cuter will overwhelm it.
